Client’s Rights and Important Information:

1. You are entitled to receive information from me about my methods of therapy, the techniques I use, the duration of your therapy (if I can determine it), and my fee structure.
 Legacy’s fees for services are outlined as follows:
 The expectation is that payment is due when services are rendered, unless you make arrangements for payment and we both agree to such an arrangement. All accounts that are not paid within 30 days from the date of services shall be considered past due. In the rare event that there is a balance in 30 days, any unpaid balance will be charged a $20 late fee charge a month. In the event that an account is overdue by 90 days or more, Legacy may be obligated to turn past due accounts to a collection agency or seek collection with a civil court action. Should this occur, Legacy will provide the collection agency or Court with your Name, Address, Phone Number, and any other directory information, including dates of services or any other information requested by the collection agency or Court deems necessary to collect the past due account. Should conditions of non-payment persist, I understand that Legacy may discontinue treatment.
2. Please let me know if you have any questions about my methods, techniques, or duration of therapy or my fee structure.
3. You can seek a second opinion from another therapist or terminate therapy at any time.
4. In a professional relationship (such as ours), sexual intimacy between a therapist and a client is never appropriate. It is a crime as well as a regulatory wrong in Colorado. If sexual intimacy occurs, it should be reported to the Department of Regulatory Agencies, Mental Health Section at 1560 Broadway, Suite 1560, Denver, Colorado 80202, (303) 894-7800 and/or your local law enforcement agency.
5. Generally speaking, the information provided by and to a client during therapy sessions is legally confidential if the therapist is a of licensed psychologist, licensed social worker, licensed professional counselor, licensed marriage and family therapist, licensed school psychologist, or registered psychotherapist. If the information is legally confidential, the therapist cannot be forced to disclose the information without the client’s consent. Information disclosed to a licensed psychologist, licensed social worker, licensed professional counselor, licensed marriage and family therapist, licensed school psychologist, or registered psychotherapist is privileged communication and cannot be disclosed without the consent of the person to whom the testimony sought relates. There are exceptions to the general rule of legal confidentiality. These exceptions are listed in the Colorado Statutes (C.R.S. 12-43-218) and in the Notice of Privacy Rights you were provided. You should be aware that provisions concerning disclosure of confidential communications shall not apply to any delinquency or criminal proceedings, except as provided in section 13-90-107 C.R.S.

There are other exceptions that I will identify to you as the situations arise during therapy.

- a. An important consideration is my obligation, by law and ethical standards, to report any suspicion of the occurrence of child abuse or neglect immediately to the proper authorities. Similar obligations exist in the area of suspected elder abuse.

- b. You should also be aware that if you should communicate any information involving a threat to yourself or to others, I may be required to take immediate action to protect you or others from these threats. Additionally, I am
  - c. obligated to inform both the person who is threatened and the authorities, should I be informed of intended harm to someone. Should I believe that there is a danger of harm to self or others, it is my obligation to make that information known.
  - d. Additionally, it is my obligation to comply with any court directions, including subpoenas, whereby I am ordered by the court to disclose information. In most situations, we will have had the opportunity to process this eventuality together prior to any court appearance.
  - e. Legacy may be obligated to turn past due accounts to a contracted collection agency or seek collection with a civil court action. Should this occur, Legacy will provide the collection agency or Court with your Name, Address, Phone Number, and any other directory information, including dates of services or any other information requested by the collection agency or Court deems necessary to collect the past due account.
  - f. When providing services to children and adolescents, it is important that parents/caregivers understand that some information will be held confidential. It is equally important that the child or adolescent understand that knowledge by this therapist of potentially dangerous behaviors be shared with the parent(s)/caregiver(s). Whenever possible, such disclosure will be processed first with the child or adolescent.
6. Should you discontinue therapy for more than 60 days, your treatment will be considered “terminated.” You may resume therapy anytime after the 60 day period. This disclosure statement will remain in effect should you resume therapy and you may be asked to provide additional information to update your client records.

If you have any questions or would like additional information, please feel free to ask.
